

Resources, Rights, and Options for Individuals Subjected to Sexual Harassment, Sex-based Misconduct, Sexual Assault, Sexual Exploitation, Sex-based Discrimination, Stalking, Domestic Violence, or Dating Violence (for Texas A&M Health in Brazos County)

Complainant – An individual allegedly subjected to sexual harassment, sex-based misconduct, sexual exploitation, sexual assault, discrimination based on sex, sex-based discrimination, stalking, domestic or dating violence (“Prohibited Conduct”), whether it occurred on or off-campus. A Complainant has certain resources, rights, and options available. For questions and additional information, contact the Department of Civil Rights and Equity Investigations (CREI) at 979-458-8407 or email civilrights@tamu.edu.

RIGHTS OF A COMPLAINANT

1. You have the right to report any and all incidents of Prohibited Conduct to the University and have that report treated seriously. You may report Prohibited Conduct to the University, the appropriate law enforcement agency, both, or neither.
2. You have the right to choose an Advisor to be present with you at any meeting, including an interview with an Investigator(s) or a live hearing. Your Advisor may be any person, including legal counsel. Except at a formal hearing, the Advisor’s participation will be limited to providing support and guidance to you. At a formal hearing, the Advisor will conduct cross-examination. If you do not have an advisor, the university will appoint one to assist you at a formal hearing.
3. You have the right to be assigned a Case Manager. The Case Manager is a University staff member assigned to you to explain your rights, resources, and options for resolving the complaint, to answer any questions you might have, and to provide supportive measures. You will be assigned a different Case Manager than the Respondent (the individual accused of Prohibited Conduct).
4. You have the right to request an investigation and resolution of all credible complaints of Prohibited Conduct. You also have the right to request that the university seek no resolution or an informal resolution.
5. If a Title IX complaint is dismissed prior to a formal or informal resolution, you have the right to a prompt notification of the reason for the dismissal, even if the Complaint is going to be reclassified and investigated under the same process as a complaint of Sex-Based Misconduct. You have the right to appeal the decision to dismiss the Complaint.
6. You have the right to have an impartial Investigator, Hearing Officer/Designated Administrator, and Appellate Authority (the person(s) who will hear an appeal) in your case. Your case and/or the appeal of your case will be decided by a person(s) who did not participate in the investigation of the allegations.
7. You have the right to be notified of (1) the receipt of the formal complaint stating the allegation of Prohibited Conduct; (2) the identity of the appointed Investigator(s); (3) the identity of the appointed Hearing Officer/Designated Administrator/Appellate Authority; (4) the option to request supportive measures, if any; and, (5) the availability of any informal resolution processes. You have the right to a thorough and fair investigation of the allegations.
8. You have the right to be notified in writing of the date, time, location, participants, and purpose of all hearings, investigative interviews, and other meetings in which you are invited or expected to participate, with such notice allowing you sufficient time to prepare to participate.
9. During the investigation, both you and the Respondent have the right to receive equitable treatment in all facets of the complaint investigation and resolution process including, but not limited to, the right to submit evidence and the right to suggest witnesses to be interviewed. You have the right to discuss the allegations under investigation with anyone you to choose.
10. You have the right to have irrelevant prior sexual history excluded as evidence during a hearing.

11. You have the right to review the draft investigation report, including all inculpatory and exculpatory evidence gathered during the investigation. You may submit a response to the report before the report is finalized and submitted to the Hearing Officer/Designated Administrator.
12. You have the right to be informed of the outcome of the investigation at the same time as the Respondent, and in cases of sexual assault, sexual harassment, sex-based misconduct, sex-based discrimination, stalking, dating violence, or domestic violence, you will be notified of the sanction imposed (if any).
13. You have the right to appeal the decision of the Designated Administrator based on new evidence; procedural irregularity; bias or conflict of interest on the part of the Title IX Coordinator, Investigator(s), or Designated Administrator; or, appropriateness/severity of the sanctions. You have the right to be notified if the case is appealed by either party and the outcome of the appeal.
14. If you have obtained a protective order, civil no-contact order, restraining order, or similar order against another member of the University community, the order should be provided to the Chief Risk, Ethics, and Compliance Officer. In conjunction with the University Police Department and other University officials, the Chief Risk, Ethics, and Compliance Officer will take all reasonable and legal actions to implement the order.

More information about these rights can be found on the Title IX website at titleix.tamu.edu. If you have questions, please contact your Case Manager or the Department of Civil Rights and Equity Investigations at 979-458-8407.

PRIVACY OF INFORMATION

Privacy of Information

Most university employees are mandatory reporters, which means that if an employee experiences, observes, or becomes aware of an alleged or suspected incident of discrimination or harassment in the course and scope of their employment, the employee must report all known information to the University. Counselors and Medical providers report de-identified statistics only. See Texas A&M University System Regulation 08.01.01, Section 2.1 for more information about mandatory reporting.

The University is committed to protecting the privacy of reporting parties, complainants, and respondents to the extent allowed by law. Given the sensitive nature of reports, information will be maintained in a secure manner and will only be disclosed to school officials who are responsible for handling the university's response and/or have a legitimate educational interest. All students' educational records are protected under the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA). For more information about FERPA, go to registrar.tamu.edu.

SUPPORTIVE MEASURES

Complainants may request assistance with changes to academic, living, transportation, and work situations. These requests will be considered regardless of whether the complainant chooses to file a formal complaint with the university or law enforcement. Contact your Case Manager to request these changes. Supportive measures will be provided free of charge and may not unreasonably burden either party.

Counseling, health, mental health, advocacy, and other services are available for complainants both on-campus and in the community. In most cases, psychologists/counselors in the University Health Services (students, uhs.tamu.edu/) or Work/Life Solutions Program (employees, employees.tamu.edu/eap) are not required to, nor may, report an incident that in any way identifies students or employees concerned without their consent. However, if an imminent harm situation is present, the counselor must take action to protect whoever is at risk. Below is a brief list of available resources. Confidential resources are italicized; however, in accordance with the Clery Act, confidential resources will report de-identified statistics only.

REPORTING PROHIBITED CONDUCT

Anonymous Reporting

Individuals wishing to submit an anonymous report may use the reporting form found on the Title IX website. The University's ability to investigate and respond to an anonymous report may be limited.

Reporting to Law Enforcement

You have the option to notify or not notify law enforcement authorities, including university and local police. Any individual may decline to notify law enforcement. An anonymous "Jane/John Doe" report can be filed with the police while deciding whether to pursue criminal charges. Law enforcement is able to help individuals understand the process of obtaining orders of protection, restraining orders, or similar lawful orders issued by the courts. Below is a list of local law enforcement agencies. Reports should be filed with the law enforcement agency that is located where the incident occurred.

Name	Phone
Brazos County Sheriff Office	979-361-4100
Bryan Police Department	979-209-5301
College Station Police Department	979-764-3600
University Police Department	979-845-2345

Importance of Preserving Physical Evidence

Retain communications and document any contact with the involved individual(s). If possible, individuals should write down dates, times, locations of contact and preserve any text messages, emails, and/or social media site postings related to the incident.

If you have experienced sexual assault and choose to go to the hospital and have a forensic exam (SANE/SAFE exam) done, consider avoiding activities that could potentially damage evidence such as: bathing, showering, using the restroom, changing clothes, combing hair, brushing teeth, or cleaning up the area. You can still report to both law enforcement and the university if you choose not to have a forensic exam performed. You can also choose whether or not you wish to report the assault after the forensic exam has been performed.

Reporting to the University (Civil Rights Complaint)

Individuals may make inquiries or file a complaint by contacting the University's Title IX Officer, Jennifer Smith, at civilrights@tamu.edu or 979-458-8407. Individuals may also visit the Department for Civil Rights and Equity Investigations in the YMCA Building, Suite 108, 365 Houston Street, College Station, TX, 77843.

Department of Civil Rights and Equity Investigations	979-458-8407	YMCA Building Suite 108 365 Houston Street	titleix.tamu.edu

Reporting to a Federal Agency

The United States Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights is a federal agency responsible for enforcing Federal civil rights laws that prohibit discrimination. Information regarding filing a complaint with the Office for Civil Rights can be found at: <http://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/docs/howto.html?src=rt>.

RETALIATION

The university will take reasonable action to protect the complainant, the respondent, and those providing witness statements on behalf of either party or supporting either party from retaliation. Additionally, those individuals are encouraged to report any acts of retaliation from other individuals associated with the incident. This action may come at any time during or following an investigation of a complaint. Individuals are reminded to contact law enforcement immediately if there is a threat to physical health or safety.

SANCTIONING

Individuals seeking information about sanctioning of students should consult the Student Sanctioning Matrix. Information about employee sanctions may be found in University Standard Administrative Procedure 08.01.01.M1.01.

Resources, Rights, and Options for Individuals Subjected to Sexual Harassment, Sex-based Misconduct, Sexual Assault, Sexual Exploitation, Sex-based Discrimination, Stalking, Domestic Violence, or Dating Violence (for Texas A&M Health in Dallas)

Complainant – An individual allegedly subjected to sexual harassment, sex-based misconduct, sexual exploitation, sexual assault, discrimination based on sex, sex-based discrimination, stalking, domestic or dating violence (“Prohibited Conduct”), whether it occurred on or off-campus. A Complainant has certain resources, rights, and options available. For questions and additional information, contact the Department of Civil Rights and Equity Investigations (CREI) at 979-458-8407 or email civilrights@tamu.edu.

1. You have the right to report any and all incidents of Prohibited Conduct to the University and have that report treated seriously. You may report Prohibited Conduct to the University, the appropriate law enforcement agency, both, or neither.
2. You have the right to choose an Advisor to be present with you at any meeting, including an interview with an Investigator(s) or a live hearing. Your Advisor may be any person, including legal counsel. Except at a formal hearing, the Advisor’s participation will be limited to providing support and guidance to you. At a formal hearing, the Advisor will conduct cross-examination. If you do not have an advisor, the university will appoint one to assist you at a formal hearing.
3. You have the right to be assigned a Case Manager. The Case Manager is a University staff member assigned to you to explain your rights, resources, and options for resolving the complaint, to answer any questions you might have, and to provide supportive measures. You will be assigned a different Case Manager than the Respondent (the individual accused of Prohibited Conduct).
4. You have the right to request an investigation and resolution of all credible complaints of Prohibited Conduct. You also have the right to request that the university seek no resolution or an informal resolution.
5. If a Title IX complaint is dismissed prior to a formal or informal resolution, you have the right to a prompt notification of the reason for the dismissal, even if the Complaint is going to be reclassified and investigated under the same process as a complaint of Sex-Based Misconduct. You have the right to appeal the decision to dismiss the Complaint.
6. You have the right to have an impartial Investigator, Hearing Officer/Designated Administrator, and Appellate Authority (the person(s) who will hear an appeal) in your case. Your case and/or the appeal of your case will be decided by a person(s) who did not participate in the investigation of the allegations.
7. You have the right to be notified of (1) the receipt of the formal complaint stating the allegation of Prohibited Conduct; (2) the identity of the appointed Investigator(s); (3) the identity of the appointed Hearing Officer/Designated Administrator/Appellate Authority; (4) the option to request supportive measures, if any; and, (5) the availability of any informal resolution processes. You have the right to a thorough and fair investigation of the allegations.
8. You have the right to be notified in writing of the date, time, location, participants, and purpose of all hearings, investigative interviews, and other meetings in which you are invited or expected to participate, with such notice allowing you sufficient time to prepare to participate.
9. During the investigation, both you and the Respondent have the right to receive equitable treatment in all facets of the complaint investigation and resolution process including, but not limited to, the right to submit evidence and the right to suggest witnesses to be interviewed. You have the right to discuss the allegations under investigation with anyone you to choose.
10. You have the right to have irrelevant prior sexual history excluded as evidence during a hearing.

11. You have the right to review the draft investigation report, including all inculpatory and exculpatory evidence gathered during the investigation. You may submit a response to the report before the report is finalized and submitted to the Hearing Officer/Designated Administrator.
12. You have the right to be informed of the outcome of the investigation at the same time as the Respondent, and in cases of sexual assault, sexual harassment, sex-based misconduct, sex-based discrimination, stalking, dating violence, or domestic violence, you will be notified of the sanction imposed (if any).
13. You have the right to appeal the decision of the Designated Administrator based on new evidence; procedural irregularity; bias or conflict of interest on the part of the Title IX Coordinator, Investigator(s), or Designated Administrator; or, appropriateness/severity of the sanctions. You have the right to be notified if the case is appealed by either party and the outcome of the appeal.
14. If you have obtained a protective order, civil no-contact order, restraining order, or similar order against another member of the University community, the order should be provided to the Chief Risk, Ethics, and Compliance Officer. In conjunction with the University Police Department and other University officials, the Chief Risk, Ethics, and Compliance Officer will take all reasonable and legal actions to implement the order.

More information about these rights can be found on the Title IX website at titleix.tamu.edu. If you have questions, please contact your Case Manager or the Department of Civil Rights and Equity Investigations at 979-458-8407.

Reporting to a Federal Agency

The United States Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights is a federal agency responsible for enforcing Federal civil rights laws that prohibit discrimination. Information regarding filing a complaint with the Office for Civil Rights can be found at: <http://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/docs/howto.html?src=rt>.

RETALIATION

The university will take reasonable action to protect the complainant, the respondent, and those providing witness statements on behalf of either party or supporting either party from retaliation. Additionally, those individuals are encouraged to report any acts of retaliation from other individuals associated with the incident. This action may come at any time during or following an investigation of a complaint. Individuals are reminded to contact law enforcement immediately if there is a threat to physical health or safety.

SANCTIONING

Individuals seeking information about sanctioning of students should consult the Student Sanctioning Matrix. Information about employee sanctions may be found in University Standard Administrative Procedure 08.01.01.M1.01.

Resources, Rights, and Options for Individuals Subjected to Sexual Harassment, Sex-based Misconduct, Sexual Assault, Sexual Exploitation, Sex-based Discrimination, Stalking, Domestic Violence, or Dating Violence (for Texas A&M Health and Engineering Medicine in Houston)

Complainant – An individual allegedly subjected to sexual harassment, sex-based misconduct, sexual exploitation, sexual assault, discrimination based on sex, sex-based discrimination, stalking, domestic or dating violence (“Prohibited Conduct”), whether it occurred on or off-campus. A Complainant has certain resources, rights, and options available. For questions and additional information, contact the Department of Civil Rights and Equity Investigations (CREI) at 979-458-8407 or email civilrights@tamu.edu.

1. You have the right to report any and all incidents of Prohibited Conduct to the University and have that report treated seriously. You may report Prohibited Conduct to the University, the appropriate law enforcement agency, both, or neither.
2. You have the right to choose an Advisor to be present with you at any meeting, including an interview with an Investigator(s) or a live hearing. Your Advisor may be any person, including legal counsel. Except at a formal hearing, the Advisor’s participation will be limited to providing support and guidance to you. At a formal hearing, the Advisor will conduct cross-examination. If you do not have an advisor, the university will appoint one to assist you at a formal hearing.
3. You have the right to be assigned a Case Manager. The Case Manager is a University staff member assigned to you to explain your rights, resources, and options for resolving the complaint, to answer any questions you might have, and to provide supportive measures. You will be assigned a different Case Manager than the Respondent (the individual accused of Prohibited Conduct).
4. You have the right to request an investigation and resolution of all credible complaints of Prohibited Conduct. You also have the right to request that the university seek no resolution or an informal resolution.
5. If a Title IX complaint is dismissed prior to a formal or informal resolution, you have the right to a prompt notification of the reason for the dismissal, even if the Complaint is going to be reclassified and investigated under the same process as a complaint of Sex-Based Misconduct. You have the right to appeal the decision to dismiss the Complaint.
6. You have the right to have an impartial Investigator, Hearing Officer/Designated Administrator, and Appellate Authority (the person(s) who will hear an appeal) in your case. Your case and/or the appeal of your case will be decided by a person(s) who did not participate in the investigation of the allegations.
7. You have the right to be notified of (1) the receipt of the formal complaint stating the allegation of Prohibited Conduct; (2) the identity of the appointed Investigator(s); (3) the identity of the appointed Hearing Officer/Designated Administrator/Appellate Authority; (4) the option to request supportive measures, if any; and, (5) the availability of any informal resolution processes. You have the right to a thorough and fair investigation of the allegations.
8. You have the right to be notified in writing of the date, time, location, participants, and purpose of all hearings, investigative interviews, and other meetings in which you are invited or expected to participate, with such notice allowing you sufficient time to prepare to participate.
9. During the investigation, both you and the Respondent have the right to receive equitable treatment in all facets of the complaint investigation and resolution process including, but not limited to, the right to submit evidence and the right to suggest witnesses to be interviewed. You have the right to discuss the allegations under investigation with anyone you to choose.
10. You have the right to have irrelevant prior sexual history excluded as evidence during a hearing.

11. You have the right to review the draft investigation report, including all inculpatory and exculpatory evidence gathered during the investigation. You may submit a response to the report before the report is finalized and submitted to the Hearing Officer/Designated Administrator.
12. You have the right to be informed of the outcome of the investigation at the same time as the Respondent, and in cases of sexual assault, sexual harassment, sex-based misconduct, sex-based discrimination, stalking, dating violence, or domestic violence, you will be notified of the sanction imposed (if any).
13. You have the right to appeal the decision of the Designated Administrator based on new evidence; procedural irregularity; bias or conflict of interest on the part of the Title IX Coordinator, Investigator(s), or Designated Administrator; or, appropriateness/severity of the sanctions. You have the right to be notified if the case is appealed by either party and the outcome of the appeal.
14. If you have obtained a protective order, civil no-contact order, restraining order, or similar order against another member of the University community, the order should be provided to the Chief Risk, Ethics, and Compliance Officer. In conjunction with the University Police Department and other University officials, the Chief Risk, Ethics, and Compliance Officer will take all reasonable and legal actions to implement the order.

More information about these rights can be found on the Title IX website at titleix.tamu.edu. If you have questions, please contact your Case Manager or the Department of Civil Rights and Equity Investigations at 979-458-8407.

PRIVACY OF INFORMATION

Privacy of Information

Most university employees are mandatory reporters, which means that if an employee experiences, observes, or becomes aware of an alleged or suspected incident of discrimination or harassment in the course and scope of their employment, the employee must report all known information to the University. Counselors and Medical providers report de-identified statistics only. See Texas A&M University System Regulation 08.01.01, Section 2.1 for more information about mandatory reporting.

The University is committed to protecting the privacy of reporting parties, complainants, and respondents to the extent allowed by law. Given the sensitive nature of reports, information will be maintained in a secure manner and will only be disclosed to school officials who are responsible for handling the university's response and/or have a legitimate educational interest. All students' educational records are protected under the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA). For more information about FERPA, go to registrar.tamu.edu.

Complainants may request assistance with changes to academic, living, transportation, and work situations. These requests will be considered regardless of whether the complainant chooses to file a formal complaint with the university or law enforcement. Contact your Case Manager to request these changes. Supportive measures will be provided free of charge and may not unreasonably burden either party.

Counseling, health, mental health, advocacy, and other services are available for complainants both on-campus and in the community. In most cases, psychologists/counselors in the University Health Services (students, uhs.tamu.edu) or Work/Life Solutions Program (employees, employees.tamu.edu/eap) are not required to, nor may, report an incident that in any way identifies students or employees concerned without their consent. However, if an imminent harm situation is present, the counselor must take action to protect whoever is at risk. Below is a brief list of available resources. Confidential resources are italicized; however, in accordance with the Clery Act, confidential resources will report de-identified statistics only.

REPORTING PROHIBITED CONDUCT

Anonymous Reporting

Individuals wishing to submit an anonymous report may use the reporting form found on the Title IX website. The University's ability to investigate and respond to an anonymous report may be limited.

Reporting to Law Enforcement

You have the option to notify or not notify law enforcement authorities, including university and local police. Any individual may decline to notify law enforcement. An anonymous "Jane/John Doe" report can be filed with the police while deciding whether to pursue criminal charges. Law enforcement is able to help individuals understand the process of obtaining orders of protection, restraining orders, or similar lawful orders issued by the courts. Below is a list of local law enforcement agencies. Reports should be filed with the law enforcement agency that is located where the incident occurred.

Name	Phone
Harris County Sheriff's Office	713-221-6000
Health Science Center Security - Houston	713-677-7700
Houston Police Department	713-884-3131

Importance of Preserving Physical Evidence

Retain communications and document any contact with the involved individual(s). If possible, individuals should write down dates, times, locations of contact and preserve any text messages, emails, and/or social media site postings related to the incident.

If you have experienced sexual assault and choose to go to the hospital and have a forensic exam (SANE/SAFE exam) done, consider avoiding activities that could potentially damage evidence such as: bathing, showering, using the restroom, changing clothes, combing hair, brushing teeth, or cleaning up the area. You can still report to both law enforcement and the university if you choose not to have a forensic exam performed. You can also choose whether or not you wish to report the assault after the forensic exam has been performed.

Reporting to the University (Civil Rights Complaint)

Individuals may make inquiries or file a complaint by contacting the University's Title IX Officer, Jennifer Smith, at civilrights@tamu.edu or 979-458-8407. Individuals may also visit the Department for Civil Rights and Equity Investigations in the YMCA Building, Suite 108, 365 Houston Street, College Station, TX, 77843.

Importance of Preserving Physical Evidence

Retain communications and document any contact with the involved individual(s). If possible, individuals should write down dates, times, locations of contact and preserve any text messages, emails, and/or social media site postings related to the incident.

If you have experienced sexual assault and choose to go to the hospital and have a forensic exam (SANE/SAFE exam) done, consider avoiding activities that could potentially damage evidence such as: bathing, showering, using the restroom, changing clothes, combing hair, brushing teeth, or cleaning up the area. You can still report to both law enforcement and the university if you choose not to have a forensic exam performed. You can also choose whether or not you wish to report the assault after the forensic exam has been performed.

Reporting to the University (Civil Rights Complaint)

Individuals may make inquiries or file a complaint by contacting the University's Title IX Officer, Jennifer Smith, at civilrights@tamu.edu or 979-458-8407. Individuals may also visit the Department for Civil Rights and Equity Investigations in the YMCA Building, Suite 108, 365 Houston Street, College Station, TX, 77843.

Reporting to a Federal Agency

The United States Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights is a federal agency responsible for enforcing Federal civil rights laws that prohibit discrimination. Information regarding filing a complaint with the Office for Civil Rights can be found at: <http://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/docs/howto.html?src=rt>.

RETALIATION

The university will take reasonable action to protect the complainant, the respondent, and those providing witness statements on behalf of either party or supporting either party from retaliation. Additionally, those individuals are encouraged to report any acts of retaliation from other individuals associated with the incident. This action may come at any time during or following an investigation of a complaint. Individuals are reminded to contact law enforcement immediately if there is a threat to physical health or safety.

SANCTIONING

Individuals seeking information about sanctioning of students should consult the Student Sanctioning Matrix. Information about employee sanctions may be found in University Standard Administrative Procedure 08.01.01.M1.01.

Complainant – An individual allegedly subjected to sexual harassment, sex-based misconduct, sexual exploitation, sexual assault, discrimination based on sex, sex-based discrimination, stalking, domestic or dating violence (“Prohibited Conduct”), whether it occurred on or off-campus. A Complainant has certain resources, rights, and options available. For questions and additional information, contact the Department of Civil Rights and Equity Investigations (CREI) at 979-458-8407 or email civilrights@tamu.edu.

1. You have the right to report any and all incidents of Prohibited Conduct to the University and have that report treated seriously. You may report Prohibited Conduct to the University, the appropriate law enforcement agency, both, or neither.
2. You have the right to choose an Advisor to be present with you at any meeting, including an interview with an Investigator(s) or a live hearing. Your Advisor may be any person, including legal counsel. Except at a formal hearing, the Advisor’s participation will be limited to providing support and guidance to you. At a formal hearing, the Advisor will conduct cross-examination. If you do not have an advisor, the university will appoint one to assist you at a formal hearing.
3. You have the right to be assigned a Case Manager. The Case Manager is a University staff member assigned to you to explain your rights, resources, and options for resolving the complaint, to answer any questions you might have, and to provide supportive measures. You will be assigned a different Case Manager than the Respondent (the individual accused of Prohibited Conduct).
4. You have the right to request an investigation and resolution of all credible complaints of Prohibited Conduct. You also have the right to request that the university seek no resolution or an informal resolution.
5. If a Title IX complaint is dismissed prior to a formal or informal resolution, you have the right to a prompt notification of the reason for the dismissal, even if the Complaint is going to be reclassified and investigated under the same process as a complaint of Sex-Based Misconduct. You have the right to appeal the decision to dismiss the Complaint.
6. You have the right to have an impartial Investigator, Hearing Officer/Designated Administrator, and Appellate Authority (the person(s) who will hear an appeal) in your case. Your case and/or the appeal of your case will be decided by a person(s) who did not participate in the investigation of the allegations.
7. You have the right to be notified of (1) the receipt of the formal complaint stating the allegation of Prohibited Conduct; (2) the identity of the appointed Investigator(s); (3) the identity of the appointed Hearing Officer/Designated Administrator/Appellate Authority; (4) the option to request supportive measures, if any; and, (5) the availability of any informal resolution processes. You have the right to a thorough and fair investigation of the allegations.
8. You have the right to be notified in writing of the date, time, location, participants, and purpose of all hearings, investigative interviews, and other meetings in which you are invited or expected to participate, with such notice allowing you sufficient time to prepare to participate.
9. During the investigation, both you and the Respondent have the right to receive equitable treatment in all facets of the complaint investigation and resolution process including, but not limited to, the right to submit evidence and the right to suggest witnesses to be interviewed. You have the right to discuss the allegations under investigation with anyone you to choose.
10. You have the right to have irrelevant prior sexual history excluded as evidence during a hearing.

11. You have the right to review the draft investigation report, including all inculpatory and exculpatory evidence gathered during the investigation. You may submit a response to the report before the report is finalized and submitted to the Hearing Officer/Designated Administrator.
12. You have the right to be informed of the outcome of the investigation at the same time as the Respondent, and in cases of sexual assault, sexual harassment, sex-based misconduct, sex-based discrimination, stalking, dating violence, or domestic violence, you will be notified of the sanction imposed (if any).
13. You have the right to appeal the decision of the Designated Administrator based on new evidence; procedural irregularity; bias or conflict of interest on the part of the Title IX Coordinator, Investigator(s), or Designated Administrator; or, appropriateness/severity of the sanctions. You have the right to be notified if the case is appealed by either party and the outcome of the appeal.
14. If you have obtained a protective order, civil no-contact order, restraining order, or similar order against another member of the University community, the order should be provided to the Chief Risk, Ethics, and Compliance Officer. In conjunction with the University Police Department and other University officials, the Chief Risk, Ethics, and Compliance Officer will take all reasonable and legal actions to implement the order.

More information about these rights can be found on the Title IX website at titleix.tamu.edu. If you have questions, please contact your Case Manager or the Department of Civil Rights and Equity Investigations at 979-458-8407.

PRIVACY OF INFORMATION

Privacy of Information

Most university employees are mandatory reporters, which means that if an employee experiences, observes, or becomes aware of an alleged or suspected incident of discrimination or harassment in the course and scope of their employment, the employee must report all known information to the University. Counselors and Medical providers report de-identified statistics only. See Texas A&M University System Regulation 08.01.01, Section 2.1 for more information about mandatory reporting.

The University is committed to protecting the privacy of reporting parties, complainants, and respondents to the extent allowed by law. Given the sensitive nature of reports, information will be maintained in a secure manner and will only be disclosed to school officials who are responsible for handling the university's response and/or have a legitimate educational interest. All students' educational records are protected under the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA). For more information about FERPA, go to registrar.tamu.edu.

Complainants may request assistance with changes to academic, living, transportation, and work situations. These requests will be considered regardless of whether the complainant chooses to file a formal complaint with the university or law enforcement. Contact your Case Manager to request these changes. Supportive measures will be provided free of charge and may not unreasonably burden either party.

Counseling, health, mental health, advocacy, and other services are available for complainants both on-campus and in the community. In most cases, psychologists/counselors in the University Health Services (students, uhs.tamu.edu) or Work/Life Solutions Program (employees, employees.tamu.edu/eap) are not required to, nor may, report an incident that in any way identifies students or employees concerned without their consent. However, if an imminent harm situation is present, the counselor must take action to protect whoever is at risk. Below is a brief list of available resources. Confidential resources are italicized; however, in accordance with the Clery Act, confidential resources will report de-identified statistics only.

Baylor Scott &amp; White Security	254-724-2344
Bell County Sheriff's Office	254-933-5412
Temple Police Department	254-933-5412

Importance of Preserving Physical Evidence

Retain communications and document any contact with the involved individual(s). If possible, individuals should write down dates, times, locations of contact and preserve any text messages, emails, and/or social media site postings related to the incident.

If you have experienced sexual assault and choose to go to the hospital and have a forensic exam (SANE/SAFE exam) done, consider avoiding activities that could potentially damage evidence such as: bathing, showering, using the restroom, changing clothes, combing hair, brushing teeth, or cleaning up the area. You can still report to both law enforcement and the university if you choose not to have a forensic exam performed. You can also choose whether or not you wish to report the assault after the forensic exam has been performed.

Reporting to the University (Civil Rights Complaint)

Individuals may make inquiries or file a complaint by contacting the University's Title IX Officer, Jennifer Smith, at civilrights@tamu.edu or 979-458-8407. Individuals may also visit the Department for Civil Rights and Equity Investigations in the YMCA Building, Suite 108, 365 Houston Street, College Station, TX, 77843.

Reporting to a Federal Agency

The United States Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights is a federal agency responsible for enforcing Federal civil rights laws that prohibit discrimination. Information regarding filing a complaint with the Office for Civil Rights can be found at: <http://www2.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ocr/docs/howto.html?src=rt>.

The university will take reasonable action to protect the complainant, the respondent, and those providing witness statements on behalf of either party or supporting either party from retaliation. Additionally, those individuals are encouraged to report any acts of retaliation from other individuals associated with the incident. This action may come at any time during or following an investigation of a complaint. Individuals are reminded to contact law enforcement immediately if there is a threat to physical health or safety.

Individuals seeking information about sanctioning of students should consult the Student Sanctioning Matrix. Information about employee sanctions may be found in University Standard Administrative Procedure 08.01.01.M1.01.
